Network Query Language (NQL)

This page applies to: Conga Contracts

Network Query Language (NQL) is a subset of Structured Query Language (SQL), and is used to write queries in the Application Program Interface (API). The NQL queries were written specifically for the Conga Contracts API and define what can be queried on each object. These queries are often set up and similar to search query or reporting in the application.